Employee Held In Landlord's Death

Body of P. A. Chrisman, Craighead County Farmer, Found in Field

JONESBORO.—Officers are investigating the death of P. A. Chrisman, 72-year-old farmer of the Union Grove neighborhood, whose body was found in a field near his home Wednesday morning. Aubrey Burton, 22, farm hand at the Chrisman place, is in jail pending investigation. Chrisman lived seven miles north of Jonesboro.

He had not actively engaged in farming for some time. Wednesday morning, officers were told Chrisman noticed that a team, which Burton had been working, was idle and went to investigate. When he did not return, a neighbor, C. B. Lunley, went out to the field and found the body.

A coroner's inquest was conducted under direction of Justice Bedford Elliott and a verdict that Mr. Chrisman died from natural causes was returned. Wednesday night, bruises were reported to have been found on his chest and county officers were notified. Another investigation started and a warrant was issued for Burton. Burton said he did not know of Chrisman's death until Thursday morning. He said he tied the team he was working and left the place. He admitted to officers that he and Mr. Chrisman had quarreled earlier in the day.

NATAL, Brazil.—(AP)—The German flying boat, Do-X, resuming a flight from the old world to the new was seen leaving the coast of Brazil Thursday toward Bahia, on the first stage of her trip to Rio de Janeiro. The biggest seaplane in the world landed later at Maceio to be refueled and took off again for Bahia.

Wife Brushes Coat Deputy's Gun Firer

NEWPORT, Ark.—(AP)—The solicitude of his wife over her appearance caused Deputy Sheriff Cord Ball a slight wound Wednesday. Ball had strapped on his .38 calibre pistol and put on his coat preparing to go on duty. Mrs. Ball was brushing his coat when the brush struck the hammer of the pistol and caused it to discharge. The bullet struck Ball in the leg just back of the knee.

North Arkansas Woman Is Modern Fruit Farmer

Apples and Cherries Are Main Crop, While Other Varieties Are Grown, Including Feed For Work Stock and Cattle

BENTONVILLE, Ark.—(AP)—A woman's fruit farm not only yields its owner and manager an income of $10,000 a year, but also is a model for other fruit farmers in Arkansas.

The farm belongs to Mrs. E. S. Taff and is regarded as one of the most successful small orchards in northwest Arkansas.

Apples and cherries are the main crops for cash. The apple crop harvested from 40 acres averages from 5,000 to 6,000 bushels per year. An acre of cherries brought a net return last year of $1,200.

Mrs. Taff keeps her farm in first class condition without extensive use of commercial fertilizers. The orchard is sown in vetch which is plowed under in early summer. It is well cultivated and during the drought last year, harrows were kept busy stirring the soil and keeping it as moist as possible.

This has enabled Mrs. Taff to do without fertilizer, yet her trees have been kept vigorous and healthy, yielding good crops when other orchards in the section have failed.

Modern and scientific methods of farming and fruit growing are practiced by Mrs. Taff. Electricity and running water add to the comfort of her home and barns.

Other crops are grown on the Taff farm of 85 acres besides apples and cherries. The garden contains vegetables for the table and some to sell. Feed is grown for the work stock and cattle on the farm.

In 1929 Mrs. Taff won a prize in a national canning contest in which 25,000 women participated. Her prize can was just a sample from two well stocked cellars which hold an abundance of canned fruits and vegetables.

Besides the management of her farm and orchards, Mrs. Taff is fond of entertaining guests and has many visitors. She also has time to take part in community activities.

Mrs. Taff designed a ladder which can be used in the orchards for picking fruit without the risk of breaking valuable trees. It is mounted on wheels and is easily moved from place to place.

A bank failure last fall temporarily halted Mrs. Taff's plans for building her "dream home" which she has designed.

Insurance Cut Is Possible For Hope

Actuary to Inspect City Friday—10 Per Cent Saving May Result

Hope has a chance to raise her fire risk classification one notch Friday when an actuary from the Arkansas Fire Prevention Bureau will meet with city officials and go over the municipal fire-fighting equipment.

Mayor John Vesey informed the city council at its meeting Tuesday that the actuary would be here, and asked that the utilities committee join in the conference Friday afternoon.

It is proposed, the mayor said, to raise Hope from classification No. 7 to No. 6, with a resultant saving of approximately 10 per cent in local fire insurance premiums.

As Hope pays an annual fire insurance bill of about $70,000, this saving would amount to $7,000 annually.

Poultry Shipping Shows Decrease

Ordinarily Poultry Prices Reach Peak in May or June

Contrary to their usual tendency, poultry prices have declined during May, according to information made available by the University of Arkansas College of Agriculture, Extension Service.

Ordinarily, poultry prices reach their highest peak in either May or June, and then take a downward course during the summer and fall months, according to E. H. Reed, extension economist in marketing. This year poultry prices averaged for the state as a whole 12.5 cents per pound on May 15 as compared with 14.2 cents a pound a month earlier, according to Mr. Reed.

Receipts on the market are expected to be comparatively light for the next few months, however, due to exceptionally heavy marketings earlier in the year. If the expected decreased marketings take place, it may mean that poultry prices may decline less rapidly this year than normal.

Another factor favoring steady poultry prices is the fact that cold storage holdings of poultry are low, the storage on May 1 being 68 per cent below May 1 last year and 38 per cent below the five-year May 1 average.

Diamond Has His Days in Court

All roads lead to the courtroom for Jack "Legs" Diamond, notorious New York gangster who here is pictured beneath a prophetic sign in the U. S. Commissioner's office at Kingston, N. Y.

Diamond posted bail totaling $72,750 for the various indictments under which he had been held there. But then he had to go to New York City to answer a federal charge of violating the prohibition law.

Seven hundred carloads of Bradley county brand Irish potatoes have been shipped by members of the Truck Growers Association. Shipments were discontinued on account of unfavorable conditions. County Agent Hemphill said that twice that amount of potatoes could have been shipped. They were shipped as follows: From Warren, seven cars; Hermitage, seven cars; Ingalls, three cars, and Banks, a half car.

WARREN.—The first car of green, wrapped tomatoes was shipped from Warren Wednesday by members of the Bradley County Truck Growers Association. Packing is being done at the Warren and Ouachita Valley railroad shed. John Hemphill, county agent, said that about 20 carloads of tomatoes probably will be shipped. The growers will be paid the day after shipment is made. The Fruit Supply Company of St. Louis is handling the crop.

TEXARKANA.—(AP)—For the first time in the history of Texarkana a county officer of one state will be tried by a court of another state on a murder charge.

This unparalleled situation will come about during the week of June 22 when John L. McCall, 35, chief deputy sheriff of Bowie county, Texas, will go to trial in Miller county, Arkansas, circuit court for the slaying of George Griffin, paroled Texas convict.

Griffin, also 35, was shot to death in his home in Texarkana, Arkansas, on the night of last January 18 during a liquor raid by Arkansas officers instigated by Texas authorities.

McCall has been at liberty under $4,000 bond since the shooting and has been continuing his duties in Bowie county. He has indicated he will plead self defense.

The state's star witness will be Tom Sewell, one of three Texarkana, Ark., policemen who raided Griffin's home. Griffin's widow will be another principal state witness.

The Texas officer has contended he shot Griffin as the latter lunged toward him after cursing him for leaving Bowie county and accompanying the raiding party.

His version of the shooting, however, does not jibe with testimony of Sewell and Mrs. Griffin at the preliminary hearing. They testified Griffin was shot as he sat on a bed.

TEXARKANA.—(AP)—Lowell Mason Duke, university football star, was shot and wounded here Thursday by Police Captain Alex West, as he sought to flee after being arrested for drunkenness following an automobile wreck.

Police said the shooting was accidental, adding that West fired at the feet of the victim.

They told police they "only wanted a little gasoline to go fishing with on Emancipation day, June 19."

Campaign Against Bootleggers to Be Launched in July

Woodcock Concentrates Efforts on Campaign by July 15

350 MEN ARE ADDED

Last of 500 to Be Sent Over Country in Aid of Prohibition

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—Prohibition officials Wednesday disclosed preparations for a campaign against the high-ups of the illicit liquor gangs that will throw against them—promptly in July 15—the biggest and best trained of agents since prohibition became a law.

Prohibition Director Woodcock acknowledged that for the last two or three months his office has been "bonding every effort" toward this date.

By mid-July, he said, approximately 350 new agents, chosen from among thousands of applications for their ability as investigators, will be trained and distributed throughout the country.

This force is the last of the 500 new agents authorized by congress. The rest are already in the field.

They will be directed specifically, Woodcock asserted, to "get" the big commercial violators and the leaders among the illicit liquor gangsters, rather than to concentrate against the speakeasy and small-time bootleggers.

"If we don't make more and better cases with our force increased by nearly a third," he said, "then something is wrong with our force. There is no denying that our effort will be stronger. The results should speak for themselves."

The start of the augmented enforcement effort will begin quietly in prominent school rooms in a dozen cities spread from coast to coast.

On the morning of July 1, the 350 new agents will be concentrated in cities roughly as follows: 15 in Boston, 12 in New York, 10 in Philadelphia, 28 in Richmond, 28 in New Orleans, 28 in Cincinnati, 55 in Chicago, 28 in St. Paul, 20 in Kansas City, 11 in Denver, 14 in San Francisco, and 14 in Seattle.

Woodcock said if present plans are carried through the actual schooling of the new agents will begin promptly on the first of July.

The 62 men taught in New York will remain entirely in that city and state, bringing the total force of agents there to approximately 340, or nearly a fourth of the entire dry army.

Minister Is Abducted, Hanged to Chandelier

DALLAS, Tex.—(AP)—B. P. Brown, occasional preacher and employee of a Dallas hotel was abducted by four men early Thursday, stripped of his clothing and hanged to a chandelier in a North Dallas Baptist church.

"Aw Judge!"

"Vagrancy and disorderly conduct—ten days!" "Half-Pint," a juvenile delinquent of Washington, took the sentence without a murmur, and when this picture was taken he was on his way to serve his time in the District pound for biting 7-year-old Catherine Alsop. "Half-Pint" was not represented by counsel at the hearing, or it might have been brought out that he is still on a milk diet because his teeth are so tiny. However, hundreds of capital residents have sprung to his defense with promises of the $2 bail and a good home when the puppy has paid his debt to society.

Two Thugs Strip and Rob Victim

DE QUEEN, Ark.—Mark Hudson, Shreveport, La., salesman, was held up, tied and robbed of his clothes, a diamond stickpin, automatic shotgun, watch and $14 at 3 o'clock Tuesday afternoon on U. S. Highway No. 41, two miles west of De Queen, by two youths driving a Ford sedan with Arkansas license.

The men had parked their car and waved down Hudson, asking him to take them to a nearby filling station to obtain gas for their car. When they entered Hudson's car they forced him, at the point of a gun, to drive off the highway where they stripped him of his clothing, robbed him and left him tied, taking his car back where their car was parked and driving off in their car.

Hudson extricated himself within 30 minutes, borrowed a pair of overalls from a nearby farmer and notified officers at De Queen. Officers were notified by the highway department that the robbers' car bore the license of a car recently stolen in Little Rock.

Conway Suffers $10,000 Fire Loss

Blaze of Unknown Origin Destroys 2 Stores and Damages 2 Others

CONWAY.—The most destructive fire in Conway in 15 months Wednesday night destroyed the Joe B. Jones building, 810 Front street, housing the John Erbacher meat market and the Powell Music Company and damaged the buildings occupied by the Don Ton Bakery and the National Bank. The buildings were owned by the Republic Company store operated by Repmans. Losses incurred by the owners were unknown, but probably will exceed $10,000.

An empty residence on Conway boulevard belonging to C. A. Holland, attorney, was destroyed in a fire originating simultaneously with the one in the business district. The downtown blaze originated in the rear of the meat market and firemen battled the fire an hour before getting it under control. Dense smoke pouring from the attics of the building hindered the fire fighters. Most of the loss was covered by insurance.

Officer Shot, Negro Killed in Gun Fight

MEMPHIS, Tenn.—(AP)—George W. Day, 29, a night sergeant for a private detective agency, was shot through the mouth and leg and a negro who gave his name as Will Johnson was fatally wounded early Wednesday in a gun battle which followed the halting of the negro by Day and another agency operative.

The negro, carrying a sack, opened fire, the officers said, wounding Day and in a running battle with Day's agency, was fatally shot. Six chickens, a shotgun and a crowbar were found as articles found in the sack.

SHOT GUN IS FOUND

Officers Trace Ownership of Weapon to Suspect Landlord

LITTLE ROCK.—(AP)—George Roseman, 28-year-old negro, was arrested Thursday in connection with the slaying Wednesday night of Gay Erwin, 28, who was shot resisting a negro robber while parked with a girl in an automobile near the city.

Miss Pearl Weaver of Lonoke, who was with Erwin, was not certain but said she believed Roseman was the right negro.

His arrest resulted from tracing the ownership of a shot gun found near the scene of the shooting to a negro with whom Roseman lived.

Companion Tells Story
LITTLE ROCK.—Gay Erwin, aged 28, died at a Little Rock hospital shortly before 11 Wednesday night about 40 minutes after he had been taken there with a shotgun wound in his right chest. Erwin was shot while he was on a highway near Lakewood north of North Little Rock about 9:30 o'clock while resisting a negro robber, police said they were told by his companion, Miss Pearl Weaver of Lonoke.

Miss Weaver came to North Little Rock Wednesday afternoon and after she and Erwin had attended a motion picture show, they went for a drive, police said. Miss Weaver told that near Lakewood a negro with a shotgun passed the automobile in which they were seated and after a moment returned from her rear of the car and pointed the gun at them, forcing them to alight, police reported Miss Weaver said.

Ordered to Undress
After having robbed Miss Weaver of about $12 which she had in her purse and Erwin of what money he had with him, the negro ordered the couple to undress. Miss Weaver told police that when they started to comply with the command, the negro fired a shot, and told them to hurry, it was reported. Erwin apparently believed that he could overpower the negro and attempted to knock the gun aside as he lunged toward the robber, police said. Miss Weaver told them. The negro fired an dth charge struck Erwin, who fell. The negro fled and Miss Weaver assisted Erwin into the car and drove to Erwin's home, 1521 Main street, North Little Rock. En route she stopped a passing motorist and asked him to call an ambulance which met the car in front of Erwin's home. Erwin was taken to St. Vincent's hospital in a Healey & Roth ambulance. Examination at the hospital showed that full charge from a shotgun had struck Erwin in the right breast and ranged toward inside the body, penetrating several vital organs. The shot apparently was fired from extremely close range as the skin was powder burned and the charge had not spread when it entered the body.

Members of the North Little Rock Police Department accompanied Miss Weaver to the scene of the shooting and, following her discovery of footprints in the highway, deputy sheriffs were called into the case to procure bloodhounds with which to attempt to trail the robber.

Dr. Samuel G. Boyce, coroner, was notified of the shooting and immediately began an investigation.

Hawks Achieves Flying Ambition

Leaves London at Dawn, Lunches at Rome, Then Back for Tea

CROYDON, Eng.—(AP)—Roaring into Croydon airdrome at 4:55 Wednesday afternoon Frank Hawks, American speed flier, accomplished his dream of breakfast in London, luncheon in Rome and tea in London, completing the round trip in nine hours and 44 minutes actual flying time.

"The Alps whipped me once," he said, as he stepped out of his ship "but I have whipped them twice now and I am satisfied. I probably will sail for the United States on June 24."

Even the hardened "grease monkeys" at the Croydon airport, used to speedy things, chucked when Hawks completed his round trip to Rome in less than 10 hours.

Previous to Hawks' first Rome flight, Wing Commander Kingsford Smith held the record time—a little over 10 hours. Captain Hawks figured his flying mileage between 1,850 and 1,890 miles. His time for the return trip from Rome to Croydon was five hours flat.

Up to daybreak Wednesday morning he left the airdrome at 5:31 a. m., arriving in Rome at 10:15 a. m., an elapsed time of four hours and 44 minutes for the down journey. After lunch in Rome he left at 11:55 a. m. and arrived back at Croydon at 4:55 p. m.

"I had a marvelous trip down and back although there were head winds going out and part of the way back," he said. "Only in Italy did I miss it. The Alps looked much sweeter in the clear sunshine than they did in the rain and fog I encountered in my previous flight to Rome."

"I will now rest up a few days, see some more of England and then pack up my tent."

City and County Co-Operation

COUNTY Judge Higgason, Mayor Vesey and the City Council are to be congratulated for the program adopted by the council Tuesday night looking to speedy completion of West Third street, the route of the Broadway of America through town.

West Third was a "blind" street. It was narrow and crooked, and was probably the poorest motor road in the city.

When the State Highway Department brought its concrete paving to the city line there was a half-mile gap between the corporation line and the town paving at Third and Washington. The state has constructed a large embankment across low spots, and much of West Third is already graded, except where the street naturally and inevitably must be widened, not only for a through highway, but to meet the requirements of any standard city street.

The county judge, the mayor and the council agreed Tuesday to divide the cost of adjusting property claims between the two governments. A joint committee from the county and city is now interviewing West Third residents, and the widening of the street will be speeded up so that the entrance to the city will be ready by the time the state's paved road is.

This will be in July. By the latter part of the month the paved road will be open to Texarkana and Texas. Traffic will enter Hope over a good graded street for half a mile until the city paving is reached. The state is grading and traveling Third free of charge. Eventually, of course, some plan will have to be worked out to make the paving continuous inside the city limits. But for the present it is excellent that the county and city authorities have succeeded in cutting the red tape to get an entrance for the highway at once.

Lawrence's Little Joke

WHEN a Hope man read in yesterday's Star where Lawrence Wilson said he was like Gov. Huey P. Long of Louisiana, the local citizen retorted to the Editor:

"About the only way Lawrence is like Huey is that he's got two legs."

Exactly what Lawrence said was this:
 "Huey P. Long and I are kindred souls. The newspapers give both of us hell."

Yeah, they do, Lawrence—but the same shotgun shoots buckshot and birdshot. Birdshot gives you hell; but when the papers go after Huey they lead up with buckshot, and then like as not drop their guns in the woods and get mangled before they get out again.

To the best of our recollection, Louisiana has only seventeen daily papers, and all of 'em fought Huey for governor, fought him for senator, and still are fighting him. And Huey was elected governor, and was elected senator, and will be elected to the next thing he runs for—in his own state.
 "There may be smarter guys in the world," says Huey, "but not in Louisiana."

Yes there is Huey. Lawrence has just admitted it.

He says the newspapers have given him hell. Huey, tell 'im it ain't so. He never has run for governor yet. So he doesn't know what hell is.

The Marion Ceremonies

THE evil that men do, as Mark Antony remarked, lives after them. The good, too often, goes to the grave with them.
 That, probably, is why we hesitate to say unkind things about the dead. It explains the fatuous compliments of most funeral orations.

Somewhat, this sticks in one's mind at the dedication, at Marion, O., of a memorial to the late President Harding.
 President Hoover is to speak. There is to be pomp and an elaborate ceremony. The accolade for which the dead Ohioan has been waiting since 1923 is to be bestowed at last.

All of which makes it advisable to do a little plain speaking. The ceremonies at Marion need to be defined.

The evil that was done at Washington during the administration of President Harding lived after him; lives on to this day, some of it, giving an unwholesome color to national politics. There was a good deal of it and it isn't pleasant to recall it. Some scoundrels sat in high places, during a few years, and the nation has not yet entirely recovered.

But the ceremonies at Marion are not concerned with that. No one has forgotten. No one should try to do any whitewashing. When President Hoover pays tribute to the memory of his predecessor, he will not be trying to tell us that all of this graft and corruption was less serious than we had thought.

Instead, the nation will be paying tribute to the presidency itself. It will, in addition, be devoting itself to exhuming the good that was buried with Warren G. Harding.

For, after all, in his private life the man was lovable.
 Whatever his mistakes as president, he had the affection of his fellow citizens. He was close to the common man; he was, in fact, one of us, with the virtues and the frailties of the average. He never claimed to be more than average. He glorified mediocrity. He was genial and he was kind-hearted and he meant to do the best he knew how to do.

These attributes, however, are not sufficient to serve as an apology for the Harding administration. Fall, Forbes, Daugherty and Sinclair are names that cannot be forgotten.

Daily WASHINGTON LETTER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON.—The old Ford Theater, where Abraham Lincoln was shot, is being painted and prettied up. Its days as a catch-all storehouse for the government are over. By fall it will have become a federal museum, receiving the remarkable Oldroyd collection of relics from the old firetrap across the street in which Lincoln died.

The building hasn't resembled a theater for many years. Things were done to it when the government acquired it shortly after the assassination and about 40 years ago, while it was being used by the adjutant general's office, its floors caved in, killing a score of employees and injuring scores more. After reconstruction it was used to store and issue the War Department's publications and printed matter until about three years ago when it came to be used for general temporary storage by various bureaus and departments.

Museum on Ground Floor

Nothing more is heard of the proposal to restore the theater so that it would look as it did on the evening of April 14, 1865. Prejudice against rebuilding and perpetuating the setting of an assassination killed that.

The ground floor, to be used as the museum, is now only one big bare room, its ceiling supported by many equally spaced iron pillars. The former front entrances are now large windows except for one. Over in a corner at the rear is a small door corresponding somewhat to the exit John Wilkes Booth took as he fled into what is now an alley to mount the horse held for him by "Peanuts" Burrows. The whole place is approximately fireproof and the work on it has been confined to general repairs and plenty of painting inside and out. The old dirty gray paint outside was sand-blasted and the bricks painted so that they look like new.

U. S. Grant III in Charge

Present operations are being carried out through the initiative of Colonel U. S. Grant III, director of public buildings and grounds. Grant was worried about the fire hazard which has always threatened the Oldroyd collection and points out that it can now be successfully shown to only eight or nine people at a time. You can't watch more than that many in the present quarters and souvenir hunters are always a danger. A quarter's admission will be charged at first in the old theater because Congress has not appropriated any money to operate it as a museum.

Three years ago the government bought the Oldroyd collection for $50,000. It contains about 3000 items. Oldroyd, who died recently, was a Civil War veteran and Lincoln admirer who devoted his life and money to the collection. He refused several private offers for it.

The prizes of the collection are considered to be the last thing which Lincoln wrote—a brief message advising a couple of applicants for a pass that they needed none to leave the District of Columbia because the war was over, the Bible which Lincoln read as a boy and which affected his literary style importantly and various pieces of furniture from the Lincoln home in Springfield, Ill.

Contains Many Items

The assortment also contains such items as a piece of the fringe that hung over Lincoln's head in the theater that night, a small piece of a towel used at the deathbed, a dried rose taken from the dead man's bosom as he lay in death, sheet music devoted to Lincoln—including about 90 different funeral marches, a roll of white ribbon left after decoration of the catafalque, about 600 pictures which include a hundred original photographs of the president, front pages from many newspapers carrying news of the assassination, scores of mourning badges, autographs of all members of the military commission which tried and convicted the conspirators, a library of hundreds of books of Lincolniana, the old wood cooking stove from the Lincoln home and a wheel from the Lincoln family carriage, Lincoln's own books, letters written by Lincoln, many political cartoons of the period, many small personal belongings and both life and death masks.

Introduction of Books Is Fought by Caldwell

NASHVILLE, Tenn.—(AP)—Counsel for Rogers Caldwell, on trial in criminal court on a charge of fraudulent breach of trust, said Sunday they would resist the proposed introduction Monday of certain records of Caldwell and company, the defendant's $39,000,000 investment banking house, now in federal receivership.

State's attorneys Saturday announced they would introduce the records in an effort to show that Caldwell had knowledge of the transfer and substitution of collateral held in trust by the Bank of Tennessee, subsidiary of the investment house. The bank is also in receivership.

End Piles Quick

No Salves—No Cutting

Your itching, bleeding, protruding piles will go when you actually remove the cause—bad blood circulation in the weak, flabby parts—and not one minute before. Salves or cutting can't do this—an internal remedy must be used. HEM-ROID, prescription of Dr.
 J. S. Leonhardt, succeeds because it stimulates the circulation, drives out congested blood, heals and restores the almost dead parts. HEM-ROID has such a wonderful record right in this city, that Ward & Son say "one bottle of HEM-ROID Tablets must end

Don't look for flaws as you go through life. And even the you find them. Be wise and kind and somewhat blind. And look for virtues behind them. It may be glorious to write. Thoughts that shall glad the two or three. High souls, like those far stars that come in sight. Once in a century. But, better far, it is to speak. One simple word which now and then shall wake the free natures in the weak. And friendless sons of men. —Selected.

WASHINGTON.—Everything is going to be all right because Secretary of Labor Bill Doak has a magic potato.

Fortunately, there is no doubt about this potato because Mr. Doak himself has testified that it stopped his rheumatism and "is even good for neurasthenia."

There is, of course, no limit to what you can do with a potato like that. As Mr. Doak says: "It brings all kinds of good luck."

The secretary let out the secret of the magic potato while he was down in Houston, Texas, and you may be sure it caused no end of excitement here in the capital, where other cabinet members became very envious indeed. Since Mr. Doak's return hardly anyone has had time for anything except speculation as to how Mr. Doak and his magic potato will set about changing the course of history.

Mr. Doak Has Confidence

The potato's first real big assignment will be to get the wheels of industry moving again so as to end the problem of unemployment. One little potato stands pitted against 6,000,000 unemployed. Can the little potato win? Mr. Doak makes no prediction, but his confidence in magic potatoes is very great. After all, no other method has yet been found to ameliorate or shorten the depression, so why not a magic potato?

Regret is widely expressed, nevertheless, over the fact that there was no magic potato at hand during the period when the official position was that there was no unemployment. In those days there were sets of magic figures and all kinds of tricks were done with them, but a magic potato was badly needed to make everybody accept the official position, which everybody never did.

Such Magic!

A proposal to use the magic potato to prevent wage cuts will be tried out as soon as President Hoover approves it.

Mr. Doak plans to assemble the principal employers of the country and get them gazing at the magic potato, which will be placed in a table or something. Then, he argues, if they keep their attention steadily on the potato for several months they will not be able to devote any thought to cutting wages.

Australian Students Drive Radicals From University

SYDNEY, Australia.—(P)—Tear gas and stink bombs set to flight several members of parliament who attempted to create a radical socialist organization at a mass meeting of Sydney University students.

"As the chief parliamentary secretary, Mr. Gosling, retreated, the students sang, "It all sounds like bovine to me," this "bovine" being the Australian equivalent of "apple sauce."

Free Movie Shows of Ford Auto Plant

Sound Motion Picture to Be Shown in Hope Friday and Saturday

A sound motion picture graphically portraying the story of the Ford Motor Company and its widespread activities will be exhibited free of charge in a special Ford exhibit to be held at Hope on the second floor of the Hope Auto Co. beginning Friday, June 18, and continuing through Saturday. The show will be open to the public from 10 a. m. to 10 p. m., according to Tom McPart, manager.

The picture, entitled "A Tour Through the Ford Factory" will show the gathering of raw materials, their arrival at the Rouge Plant in Dearborn, Michigan, and the numerous interesting stages through which they pass in the process of making Ford cars and trucks. It is, in short, an education in the extent and meaning of modern volume production.

While an unseen voice explains each scene, the audience is taken on a tour of the plant, through the great blast furnace building where ore is converted into iron; into the open hearth building where the iron becomes steel and is poured, a white hot liquid, into molds; into the blooming mill where the steel ingots are made into bars;

and into the rolling mill in which the long bars of white-hot steel are reduced to definite sizes. Forty kinds of steel, each of a composition to serve a definite purpose, are used in the Ford car and truck.

The picture shows also the manufacture of glass in an endless unbroken strip, a process developed by Ford engineers; the machine shops in which parts for the car are manufactured; the pressed steel building with its gigantic presses; and the coke ovens and other units in which by-products are recovered to the extent of millions of dollars annually.

Throughout the picture, one sees literally miles and miles of conveyors which take much of the manual labor off the backs of men. There are conveyors carrying newly arrived materials into the plant, others taking parts from one building to another, and, of course, the final assembly line, that famous conveyor on which the parts are put together to form the completed car.

In addition to the picture, there will be a representative line of Ford cars, an trucks and display boards containing car and truck parts.

HOOKS AND SLIDES

DO YOU KNOW THAT—

RED GRANGE might have been a Frank Wykoff or a Lee Sentman if it hadn't been for Zupke.

According to Jim McMillen, running mate of Red back in 1922-24 and now tackling the pachyderms on the Curley circuit, "Grange won an intramural track meet for the Zeta Psi boys, and all by himself."

He scored more points than any one team. . . . He won six firsts, scoring 30 points, capturing the 70 and 100-yard dashes, the high and low hurdles and the high and broad jump. . . . Red was a great high jumper. . . . Big Earl Britton used to throw his passes high to Grange and the Redhead would go after them, where nobody else could touch them. . . . We beat Iowa 9 to 6 one year on just such tactics."

the Braves, after a bad year in 1930, has been one of the puzzles of the big league campaign. Bill McKechnie explains it in this manner:

"Brandt is using his curve. In a recent series with the Giants he used almost nothing but curves."

The Braves, by the way, have quite a few roundhouse flingers. Tom Zachary is down in the books as a "nothing pitcher," but it's a fact he has a pretty good curve. Socks Seibold is a slant specialist. Sherdel throws a tantalizing slow curve.

The National League is referred to by baseball men as "a curve ball league." With a collection of curves such as McKechnie has gathered, some team in the first division is due to be shoved back.

Leading in Her Belmont Champion

The 40,000 race enthusiasts who jammed Belmont Park, Long Island, to witness the sixty-third running of the classic Belmont Stakes had expected to see a thrilling duel between Twenty Grand and Jamestown, last year's 2-year-old champion. But Twenty Grand proved undisputed superiority when he romped home ten lengths ahead of Sun Meadow, second, and Jamestown, third. Here you see the great colt, which also won the Kentucky Derby and the Wood Memorial this year, as his owner, Mrs. Payne Whitney, led him back to the paddock after he had captured the $38,770 stake, with Charlie Kurtsinger up.

GAY MELODY GIRL

by RUTH DEWEY GROVES

AUTHOR OF
The Husband Hunter, etc.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

HELL, HENDERSON hopes that a radio career will help her forget her hopeless love for TOMMY WILSON who is engaged to her half-sister, IRENE. She goes about with PRENTISS GAYLORD until Irene learns that he is rich and manages to win him away from her. After a hotly married life they depart for Gaylord's western home. In despair Tommy strikes her and she is sent to a sanatorium. Her father catches her while trying to find him to urge him to break with the hopelessly mad girl. Her throat is affected and she dies. She tells her aching days are over. When Tommy realizes that she has made this sacrifice to save him he reforms, gets another job, and starts a new life. He tells her he will come to her in the next life.

JUST GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XLIV

"GAYLORD!" The name, as Irene uttered it, rang out with a terror that the most genuine emotion Derry had ever heard her voice.

As Gaylord's car neared them Irene not only feared him physically but saw all chance of a reconciliation with him fading forever.

Derry sat quite still beside her and it was to assume that he was frozen with fear.

On the contrary the young man sat still because he was not afraid and because he did not know what to do.

Gaylord drew up alongside them and jammed the car's brakes with a force that sent him skidding into the banked snow at the side of the road. Before the car had come to a stop he had flung open the door at his side and sprang out.

Derry did not wait for him. Suddenly he found himself in the face of this wild man at all to his liking. He too stepped out into the road. He was directly in front of Gaylord and in another instant they stood face to face.

"So it's you!" Gaylord rasped. "I'm going to knock you into the middle of next week."

"You and who else?" Derry retorted.

Gaylord drew back his fist and then suddenly dropped it. He looked past Derry to Irene, then again to Derry.

"Who's responsible for this?" he asked curtly.

Derry was tired of being thrust into the role of a home-breaker and was in no mood to listen to a repetition of Gaylord's remarks on a former occasion.

"What about it?" he challenged. "You're getting Irene back. That ought to satisfy you."

Gaylord's gaze snapped back to Irene's blanched countenance. She could not look away and under her husband's scornful scrutiny she began to flush.

He turned back to Derry. "You're mistaken," Gaylord said coolly. "You may keep what you took."

"Sorry I can't oblige you," Derry said wickedly. "The young lady prefers a man with money."

GAYLORD showed his surprise.

"What do you mean?" he asked. "Doesn't she know?"

"I was about to tell her when you came along," Derry explained.

Gaylord whirled to Irene. "Is that true?" he demanded.

"Is what true?" the girl asked.

"Didn't you know Derry was in with the people who struck all this morning?"

"Struck off?" Irene repeated vaguely.

Gaylord laughed. "I see you didn't know," he said wittingly.

"Your future husband is a budding millionaire."

"Never mind that future husband business," Derry cut in. "I wouldn't have her!"

"Why, you contemptible sneak!"

Gaylord cried and this time his fist shot forward to a glancing mark on the side of Derry's blond head.

"You think you can get off like that, do you?" Gaylord rasped.

"You're going to take your medicine and I'll see that you get it too!"

"Why, damn you!" Derry, half-crying with rage struck back. "I'll see you both in hell before I'll marry her."

"Come on and fight," Gaylord urged although Derry was fighting and fighting well too. "I've been waiting for a chance to knock you off the earth. Come on and take it!"

They tore at each other while Irene sat watching. But it was not the spectacle of the two men fighting that filled her with horror. It was the thought of her own position.

Now she'd lost both Gaylord and Derry, and both of them were rich. All that remained to her was Tommy. She wouldn't even have the money Gaylord had promised her as a settlement and if he wanted to Gaylord could disgrace her forever.

Maybe it was Derry's good beating that would satisfy him and he wouldn't want to bring his name into the divorce.

This was indeed a crisis and it was not of Gaylord that Irene thought. It was of herself! The nearer the motorcycle officer appeared the greater grew her alarm.

They all would be arrested! Every one would know she'd been in the park with Derry. Gaylord wouldn't forgive her and the whole town would rock with scandal.

Irene did not think all this out logically. There was no time for that. The urge for self-preservation was instinctive and instinctively she followed it.

Just as the officer drew near enough to see what was going on Irene started Derry's car with a jerk which almost sent her over the wheel. The machine would have roared down the road if the motor hadn't been so cold.

The officer's attention was centered on the men whose fight was still raging fiercely regardless of his arrival.

He had come to stop them and not be too gentle about it either for he was in a fighting mood himself.

Fifteen minutes earlier he'd been cozily taking hot coffee in a corner gas station and hoping all drivers would have sense enough not to speed on a day when the roads were like ice.

Then Gaylord's car had flashed past at a speed that was not only a direct violation of the traffic laws but also of a cold and hungry officer's feelings.

When Gaylord discovered the officer in his wake he put on more speed and if ever there was a mad man this officer could qualify.

Bang! The officer was in a snow-bank. He wasn't hurt nor was his motorcycle but he was angrier than ever and badly shaken up. It took him several minutes to get himself together, and then, taking it for granted that the speeder had got away from him, he proceeded at a safer rate.

He headed for the park on the lookout for necking parties.

There'd been other things in the officer's line of duty besides capturing neckers—a few holdups and hijacking parties. When he came upon trouble now he did not jump to frivolous conclusions.

Two men fighting in a park, one of them a traffic violator, and a girl parked in a car could mean anything.

He went at the men in earnest. Waving his back was turned Irene got the motor of Derry's car warmed up sufficiently to make a getaway. She tied it but the officer whirled, telling her to stop.

IRENE did not heed him and he was determined enough to act with purpose. The officer yelled again, but Irene kept on going.

Her attempt to escape was in itself an implication of wrongdoing. The officer could have gone after Irene and brought her back in a minute or two but then she might be foolish enough to refuse to halt, thereby endangering his life as well as her own. He'd had enough of that for one day. Besides he wasn't going to lose his man a second time.

So he yelled at Irene a third time, warning her that he'd fire, and still she did not stop. Of course he did not fire to injure her but she was hurt just the same.

The bullet tore into a rear wheel, sending the car careening across the road. The open door, swinging wildly, brought up against a telephone pole and the car came to a stop.

Gaylord and Derry, who had paid no attention to the officer until he fired, stopped fighting abruptly as the gun's report brought them to consciousness of what was going on.

They started running toward the car as it slid over the slippery road in peril of toppling over and they reached it just as Irene lost consciousness.

The men who had fought over her, both battered and gory, lifted her tenderly from the motor car and got her into Gaylord's roadster. It made Derry sick to look at her and so it was Gaylord who answered the officer's questions.

Nevertheless it was Derry who held Irene in his arms while Gaylord drove them to Oakdale and to the hospital. He held her but he did not look at her.

Some of her clothing, which the officer dug from her suitcase, pillow Irene's head and Derry saw to it that her face was covered as closely as it could be without smothering her.

Hospital attendants took her from him when they arrived there and put her on a stretcher, carrying her away.

"Do you think she will die?" he asked Gaylord.

"You might wait and find out," Gaylord told him, "but I think you'd better fade out of the picture, Meade."

Derry nodded. So only Gaylord and Tommy were left in Irene's life.

Tennessee Legislature Enters Its 6th Month

NASHVILLE, Tenn.—(P)—Tennessee's 75 days legislative session, now in its sixth month, has less than three weeks left in which to dispose of the greater number of 2100 bills introduced.

Convening January 5, the general assembly took recesses totaling four months in order to speed the legislative investigation of state affairs following the collapse of four banks having almost $7,000,000 of state deposits. The recesses account for the prolonged session.

Impeachment proceedings against Governor Henry H. Horton, growing out of the investigation and a wrangle over whether to disburse with the auditors employed by the investigators, have kept the house occupied since the legislature reconvened on May 25.

All eight articles of impeachment were defeated and the house concurred in a senate resolution calling for an end of the departmental audit, but notice of a motion to reconsider the latter action deferred final disposition of the matter until next week.

Putting Money in Automobile Radiators Is Suggested

WASHINGTON.—(P)—The Federal Bureau of Investigation suggested Sunday by the department.

It said money provided a quick freeze solution in winter to keep the radiator cool in summer.

The department warned that gaskets and hose connections must be tight or the money will leak into the cylinders and cause damage.

One man was said to have had same solution in his radiator for ten or eight years.

When you consider your Adam's Apple, you are considering your throat—your vocal chords. What is the effect of modern Ultra Violet Rays upon tobacco? Dr. E. E. Free, one of America's well-known scientists, who was retained by us to study Lucky Strike's manufacturing process, addressing the Illuminating Engineering Society, said:

"The essential effect of the Ultra Violet is the production of better tobacco and of cigarettes regarded by virtually all smokers who have tested them as milder and with a lesser tendency to cause throat irritation."

Here in America LUCKY STRIKE is the only cigarette that employs Ultra Violet Rays in connection with its exclusive "TOASTING" Process—the only cigarette that brings you the benefits of the exclusive "TOASTING" Process which expels certain harsh irritants present in all raw tobaccos.

A Department In Which The Editor of The Star
Plays His Own Piano

A grandson of President James A. Garfield, socially prominent in Cleveland, killed himself a few weeks ago, and Dan R. Hanna, member of another illustrious family and a powerful factor in Cleveland's business world, undertook to keep the news out of the papers.

The Cleveland News, weakest of the city's three papers, said Mr. Garfield was dead, but omitted the cause. The Scripps-Howard Cleveland Press and the Plain Dealer, Cleveland's big morning paper, printed the facts. Garfield had shot himself.

If you want to know why the News is Cleveland's third paper instead of the first, you don't need to inquire any further.

I am indebted to the Publishers' Service magazine for the answer that Paul Bellamy, managing editor of the Plain Dealer, gave to Dan Hanna when Hanna called on him to suppress the suicide story:

"If I left my office tonight, went home and blew off my silly head," said Bellamy, "I would want my newspaper to publish just that."

People like Dan Hanna who come to newspaper offices for special favors go away thinking that newspapers are savage vultures, and that the reporters are never around except in time of trouble. But the truth is that more people come to a newspaper with unfair, unjust proposals than come to any other business on earth. A bank turns down a loan, and the would-be-borrower knows that that must be the banking business. Yet the same man as a newspaper editor has the right to print or suppress news at his leisure. Editors do not make the news that makes their paper. The public makes the news, and the editor hands it back to the public on a printed page.

I have seen but one story suppressed in my 10 years as a newspaperman.

Death Penalty For Alleged Murderer

William Frazer Convicted by New Jersey Jury as Killer of Woman

ELIZABETH, N. J.—(P)—William Moore Frazer of Rahway, charged with the "death ride" killing February 18 of Mrs. Phoebe Stader, whom he professed he loved, was convicted of first degree murder Tuesday. The jury deliberated five hours and 50 minutes and did not recommend mercy. The verdict carried a mandatory death penalty.

Within a half hour after papers had been signed, Judge Alfred A. Stein sentenced Frazer to die in the electric chair the week of July 27.

Frazer's mother, who occupied a seat in the rear of the courtroom, fainted when the jury reported it had found him guilty of first degree murder. She was carried from the courtroom and did not hear Judge Stein pronounce sentence. Frazer's wife, present during most of the trial, was not in the room when the verdict was returned.

To Introduce New Song Hit in 'Laughing Sinners'

Joan Crawford offers a new song number in "Laughing Sinners," her new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer starring vehicle which will open Sunday at the Saenger Theatre.

The song is "What Can I Do—Love That Man?" written by Martin Brookes and Arthur Freed especially for the production, which was directed by Harry Beaumont from the Kenyon Nicholson stage hit, "The Torch Song." It is one of the few new songs to make its debut from the screen and the first time Joan has sung in pictures since "Montana Moon."

In the dramatic picture, the song serves as an atmospheric background in many episodes after it is originally rendered by the star in Helen Morgan style in the opening roadhouse scenes which motivate the story.

Neil Hamilton and Clark Gable share leading man honors in the new film and the cast includes Marjorie Rambeau, Guy Kibbee, Cliff Edwards, Roscoe Karns, Gertrude Short, George Cooper, George F. Marion and Bert Woodruff.
